Explanation of complaint between customer and invention promoter:

A full explanation Marsha Grimes' complaints against ISC/WISC is contained in her Complaint filed in the United States District Court for the Western District of Oklahoma, a copy of which is attached hereto. However, in short, ISC and WISC and affiliated companies ("ISC") are fundamentally dishonest with their customers. ISC leads its customers to believe there is a strong possibility, in fact a likelihood, of financial success. ISC leads their customers to believe that most of ISC's money is made from licensing from their clients' products, when, in fact, ISC makes its money from the up front fees it charges. ISC's former patent attorney, Ivar Kaarda, who is also named as a defendant in Mrs. Grimes' lawsuit, has recently been disbarred by the United States Patent and Trademark Office. His disbarment related to the fact that his services were contracted for and ordered by ISC in an improper manner. ISC has a history going back decades of misleading and defrauding thousands of inventors. Millions of dollars have been bilked from the public by ISC. In addition, Universal Finance, an affiliated lending company, extends credit when it should not. Persons in dire financial circumstances should not be lured into spending $10,000 on a poorly drafted patent and worthless evaluation and marketing services. Do not be misled by these companies. Their services are not nearly worth the price you will pay.
